To the Editor,

After reviewing all the Windsor Star articles and press releases on the Project Ice Track website, I find it hard to believe that the Mayor and his administration prefer to attack the Project Ice Track proposal vs. embrace and act on it. Here you have a partnership of the Toldo and Rosati families, two of the areas most prominent, offering to put up approx. 60% of the total investment for an arena and take all its operating loss risk. It's beyond me why the City is not all over this deal. I do believe the Mayor is correct in saying that the decision must be based on a sound business case. Can't wait to see the business plan for the east end arena proposal. It seems the Project Ice Track team has come up with a new and innovative way to make an arena venture viable. I'm willing to bet that all the other municipalities and towns that are currently in the process of evaluating arena proposals are wishing this was their deal. So Mr. Mayor, why the delay?

Regards
